The Russell Plan by Donald Russell Assistant Secretary for Administration 12 pp.

ABSTRACT

This plan proposes a reorganization of the intelligence activities in the State Department. It describes the controversy over intelligence within the State Department and discusses and analyses the problems and solutions involved in this controversy. Finally it recommends that the Office of Research and Intelligence (State) be abolished and that all the geographic intelligence divisions in ORI be absorbed by the regular State divisions. The plan suggests that a new office of Intelligence Coordination and Liaison* along with the Office of Intelligence Collection and Dissemination be controlled by a proposed Standing Committee on Intelligence. The functions of each office are enumerated [Darling Transcript]
